COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

MONDAY EVENING, Nov. 20.

In Saturday's telegrams from London there is little calling for special notice. Stocks and shares, so far as are generally quoted, exhibit no alteration, and the Produce markets are also unmoved.

Cotton in Liverpool on Saturday closed steady at unchanged prices, the day's sales being 12,000 bales, of which 2,000 were Surats. In New York, however, ready Mid-Uplands were 1-16 higher at 9-16 cents, March shipment 14 points up at 10·79 cents per lb.

The receipts at the American ports to date give the following comparisons :—

	1882.	1881.	1880.
Saturday's receipts	39,000	3 ,000	28,000
Total since 1st Sept.	1,968,000	1,852,000	2,131,000

The Bank of Bombay return for the week ending on Saturday shows the following changes :—

Public Deposits at H. O.	Inc.	Rs.	25,24,525
Do. do. Branches	Inc.	,,	4,28,178
Other Deposits	Dec.	,,	9,11,393
Government and other Authorised Securities	Inc.	,,	3,32,500
Loans	Inc.	,,	3,94,055
Bills Discounted	Inc.	,,	2,45,433
Cash with Correspondents	Inc.	,,	2,44,354
Cash and Currency Notes	Inc.	,,	8,02,765

These changes, it will be observed, indicate a slight increase in the ordinary trade demand, the increase in the cash balance being due to the increased amount under the head of Government Deposits. It is currently reported to-day, however, that Government have again withdrawn heavily from their account, whilst we hear that the Bank of Bengal have been similarly drawn upon to a large extent in Calcutta. At this time of year, when Government requirements are small, especially with next to nothing in the shape of Council drawings to meet, it is perfectly evident that these withdrawals are made with the direct object of affecting exchange, but we question very much whether in the existing state of things the desired result will be attained.

Exchange to-day has been extremely quiet. No quotable alteration in rates has taken place, but it is perfectly evident that sellers of bills have no belief in the current level. We quote :—

Bank Bills on demand	.. 1s. 7 35-32d.		per rupee.
Do. Telegraphic	.. 1s. 7 23-32d.		,,
Do. 3 months' sight	.. 1s. 7 29-32d.		,,
Credits, 2	,,	,, 1s. 8d.	,,
France, 2	,,	,, 2 10d	,,

On Calcutta we quote demand drafts at ¼ per cent. premium, 60 days' sight at 9-16 per cent. discount.

Government Paper is quiet at unchanged rates, say Rs. 99¾ for Fours, Rs. 106½ for Fours-and-a-half. Owing to a holiday in Calcutta, however, whence the strength has latterly come, there has been very little doing to-day.

Shares are dull. Bank of Bombay are ½ per cent. lower at Rs. 787½. In Press Companies we notice a decline of Rs. 2 in Broach Cotton Co., Rs. 2½ in New Indian, Fort Press are Rs. 25 higher. Spinning and Weaving Mills tend quieter, and in several instances are Rs. 5 lower.

Cotton to-day has been very firm on the strength of the home advices, and for new crop there have been numerous buyers at Rs. 2 to Rs. 3 advance, without, however, bringing out sellers. Altogether some 2,500 bales are reported to have changed hands at the following prices :—

Good	Broach,	March, dely.	Rs. 217 to Rs. 218
,,	Faispore	Jany. to Mar.	,, 185 ,, 187
,,	Omras	do.	,, 187 ,, 190
,,	Dholleras	April,	,, 183
,,	Bengal,	Dec.	,, 147

Seeds and Wheat may be concluded and supplies are comparatively light.

Freights are steady but no higher. For Liverpool we quote 21s. 3d. to 22s. 6d., and for Trieste and Venice 21s. 3d., payable here.

Piece-goods are unchanged. A fair inquiry prevails for standard qualities, but prices are in no way changed.

Coals are firm for anything near at hand, but distant shipment meets few buyers even at comparatively low rates.

The Bombay Gazette

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1882.

For some considerable time the representatives of the Mahomedan community of Bombay have been carrying on a controversy with the Municipal authorities, and also with the Government, respecting the charges made for water supplied to mosques and other religious buildings for purposes of public worship. The origin of the discussion was a resolution on the part of the Municipality to levy a special rate for water supplied, according to the amount consumed, instead of a fixed nominal rate as heretofore. The objections to this change furnished by the Anjuman-i-Islam were both of a practical and sentimental character, and in spite of successive repulses they have persevered in their opposition with a pertinacity which of itself almost merits success. Reduced to its practical dimensions, the question at issue does not seem of great importance, though the religious arguments adduced against the action of the Municipality are of interest as illustrating the tenacity with which religions cling to ordinances rendered obsolete by the natural change of time and circumstances. Under what is called the old system, religious and charitable edifices were charged a fixed nominal rate of five rupees per annum for water supplied to them. In 1879 the Municipality resolved to affix metres to the buildings, and impose a special rate of six annas per thousand gallons, being one-half the ordinary special rates. Against this charge the Mahomedans protested, and after some correspondence it was reduced to three annas. Even with this rate the petitioners were dissatisfied, and have ever since maintained an agitation for a return to the old fixed nominal rate of five rupees. The first point that presents itself in connection with the controversy is the isolated action of the Mussulman community against a tax which is levied without exception on religious buildings of every denomination. It deserves to be stated, however, that it is the mosques that are primarily, and almost wholly, affected by the action of the Municipality. Hindu temples are almost without exception provided with wells ; and with the Parsees the use of well-water in religious exercises is obligatory. The Mahomedans have no exceptional preferences for well-water, and are willing to accept the fluid from any quarter, provided it is supplied under what they might consider satisfactory terms.

The practical arguments supplied by the Anjuman-i-Islam are not wanting in cogency, even though to the pious Mussulman they are less important than the religious. To such a gentleman it is an unanswerable objection to the action of the Municipality that, according to the sacred writings of Islam, water is no man's property and cannot be sold. "It is written," say the Mahomedans, "in 'Fatwa-Alamgiri' that 'it is not lawful to sell water in a well or stream,' and so also it is recorded in 'Havi.'" This injunction would seem to justify the managers of mosques in withholding payment of what they may consider a heretical impost. It is true an obstinate Municipality, such as Bombay, it must be confessed, has in this respect proved itself to be, might reply to this sacred commandment by the very secular proceeding of cutting off the supply. But this action is provided for in "Hidaya," where it is stated that "if a person is possessed of a well, stream, branch of a stream, or a pipe, he cannot prohibit either men or animals from drinking of them, and this is based on the saying of the blessed prophet that 'all the people are partners in three things, viz., water, fire, and grass (jungle).'" The Anjuman reason with great ingenuity, from these and sayings to a similar effect, that any attempt on the part of the Municipality to measure out the water would be in contravention of their religious commandments, and is, therefore, not to be thought of. The Municipal Commissioner proved, however, not altogether unequal to his antagonists even in theological matters. A most remarkable feature of the Anjuman's opposition was their peculiar hostility to the employment of a metre, even when the water was not to be charged according to measurement. Say they : "In every probability the metre may not go correct always, and it is also possible that when it is gone wrong this defect of it will not immediately become known to the contracting parties. In such a case if water comes more than its fixed quantity it would be unlawful to use it, and if it comes less there would be a loss to the mosque. In both of these cases an obstruction in the observance of religion would occur (vide Kurane Sharif), in which it is written that 'you ought to weigh or measure with a correct measure or scale.'" To this last sentiment most of us will be prepared to respond "Amen ;" though we imagine it would be less feasible to convince our purveyors (even among pious Mussulmans) that in order to obviate the danger of transgressing this ordinance they ought to supply our goods for nothing. To the objection to the use of the metre, however, the Municipal Commissioner turns the sacred sayings against the Mahomedans themselves. He quotes the "Munayatul Mussali," where it is stated, "Do not be wasting in water, though you be on the bank of a river, as God says, do not squander away," and argues therefrom that to the Mussulmans this ought to be a great inducement to affix metres, inasmuch as no better method can be devised for preventing an undue consumption of water. As to the statements that it is unlawful to sell water "except in a pot," Mr. Ollivant conclusively rejoins that these arguments have little application to a state of circumstances where an artificial supply of water has been procured from a distance at great cost.

It will be evident that the theological case presented by the Anjuman is not very substantial. There are some of their practical arguments, however, which may fairly be considered. It is contended, for example, that special rates ought not to be levied for water supplied to mosques, because these are visited by people in the vicinity, who pay the ordinary assessment, and perform their ablutions at the mosque. The water they use is, therefore, paid for, because if they did not bathe at the mosque they must do so at home. It is further pointed out that the mosques have little or no funds available, and many of them would be quite unable to meet a special rate. They are further resorted to by poor people who could not otherwise cleanse themselves as required by their religious ordinances, and therefore a useful sanitary purpose is served. It is noted, too, that the tanks of mosques serve as reservoirs in case of fires in the neighbourhood, and even as baths they effect a saving, inasmuch as many more people are washed in a given number of gallons of water, when bathing in common, than were each individual to perform the necessary ablutions at home. Finally, it is argued that as gentlemen with gardens at Malabar Hill are supplied with any amount of water under the ordinary assessment, the same liberality might be extended to religious and charitable buildings. We are very far from desiring that exceptional privileges should be granted for religious objects merely because they are religious. It is evident that a principle of this sort, even though it must occasionally be recognised in the East, is not one which ought to be encouraged, or of which undue advantage should be taken. The tendency, in fact, should be in the other direction. But in this question of the water-rate, which has so profoundly exercised the Mahomedan community, a justifi[redacted]ay be found for their claims on purely grounds. The main object of a spec[redacted] charge is, of course, to recover the c[redacted]pplying factories, and such like, with [redacted]d with it a certain proportion of pro[redacted]which, in such cases, the Municipalit[redacted]arly entitled. Where water is employ[redacted]rposes of profit, and becomes an ag[redacted]he business of the user, it is only [redacted]e that he should be charged a fair s[redacted]e supply of it, just as he is charged [redacted], machinery, or any other similar a[redacted]o his industry. But just as there is [redacted]y appreciable distinction between th[redacted]he manufacturer and that of the gent[redacted]o keeps up a garden to beautify his [redacted]ourhood and afford pleasure to himself, so there is a similar difference between supplying water to furnish a factory and supplying it to supplement the religious exercises of poor and pious Mahomedans, and others who, however imperfectly, yet recognise, one way or another, that cleanliness is akin to godliness. Clearly the mosque and the garden come under the same head, or, at least, it is more reasonable to bracket them together than to combine the temple and the factory as kindred institutions for the purposes of water assessment. Moreover, the sum at issue is relatively insignificant. There are in all some ninety-seven mosques in Bombay. Taking an estimate of the water supplied, three annas per thousand gallons would realise rather less than five thousand rupees. The sum derived from the nominal charge is, of course, less than five hundred rupees. The loss of between four and five thousand rupees may seem a consideration, but it is really not much compared with the loss in other directions, when it is stated that in one case a consumer used over twenty thousand gallons per annum under the ordinary assessment, and there are probably many cases of a similar character. We do not, of course, pay much attention to religious ordinances designed for pastoral and nomadic people, but if any religious prejudices exist among Mussulmans on the subject, it is hardly worth while offending them for the small sum at stake. The matter at present is in this condition : the old rate of five rupees per mosque was levied last year by mistake in many instances, and on that account the Municipal Commissioner has stayed all proceedings under the new resolution, pending a satisfactory settlement. An attempt is now being made to ascertain the amount of water supplied to each religious building in the city. From approximate information, as we have stated, it is estimated that the three-anna rate would produce five thousand rupees per annum. In order to get over the religious scruples about measuring out water, Mr. Ollivant offers to accept five thousand rupees in a lump sum from the Mahomedan community in quittance of water charges against all mosques, and to abstain from making claims against single mosques. This appears to be as reasonable a proposition as could be made, under the existing resolution, and unless the Municipality can see their way to exempt religious buildings from special rates we should advise the Mahomedans to accept it. Mr. Ollivant hopes the result of the present inquiry may justify this exemption, and makes the suggestion we have noted as a temporary expedient. For the present, therefore, the Mahomedans might do well to agree to the compromise.

A Trieste paper (Triester Zeitung) contains an account of the arrival of Sir Garnet Wolseley at that port. The General (who is described as "Lord von Kairo") arrived at Trieste on board the Iris, along with the Duke of Connaught, on the morning of Oct. 25. He went ashore in plain clothes, accompanied by an aide-de-camp, and proceeded to the Hotel de la Ville. After partaking of some refreshment in the coffee-room he went into the reading-room and scanned the newspapers. As he was travelling incognito, he made no calls on official personages, and received none. In the afternoon, accompanied by the Duke of Connaught, he strolled through the National Exhibition now being held in that port, paying particular attention to the marine section and making some important purchases. At five o'clock the same afternoon the General left for Paris and London vid Turin. Although going but a few miles on their line, the Southern Austrian Railway Company very kindly placed the handsomest saloon carriage in their possession at the General's disposal, to be used by him all the way to Calais. Sir Garnet was accompanied to the railway station by Captain and Mrs. Burton and a contingent of the English colony. On entering the carriage, Mrs. Burton presented the General with five bouquets, and as the train moved off he was loudly cheered. The Duke of Connaught remained in Trieste incognito. The Triester Zeitung describes Sir Garnet as being sunburnt, and short in stature, "in this respect recalling Napoleon I., with whom, however, he has nothing else in common." We presume that the last phrase refers to the personal appearance of the two commanders, and is not meant to diminish, by implication, Sir Garnet's military qualities. The reception awarded to the British General by the authorities of Trieste seems to have been as cordial as the private character of his visit would allow. Though this cannot be magnified into an event of international importance, these little civilities, and the appreciative language of the Triester Zeitung, deserve to be reckoned as some evidence of the complaisance with which the Austrians regard his achievements and the policy that made them possible. This, at all events, is something, as matters stand just now.

What, we hope, will practically be the last scene of the King Divorce case was enacted yesterday, in the High Court, before Mr. Justice Bayley. The question of costs, it is true, remains for argument, but this is unimportant, and the right of appeal will probably not be exercised by the petitioner. By the decision of the judge Mrs. King is held to have been guilty of adultery, and her petition for divorce is, therefore, dismissed. There was nothing new brought out at the hearing yesterday. The petitioner did not respond to the summons of the Court to come up for further examination, and the judge, thereupon, considered that the charges brought against her were true. The principal result of the case is to show that in the absence of a Queen's Proctor, his duties must, to a great extent, be undertaken by the Court. This is a fact which Mr. Justice Bayley appeared to be in no hurry to recognise. His disinclination was by no means unreasonable, for the peculiar duties attached to the office of Queen's Proctor are not such that any Court would willingly assume them, nor is it in a position to adequately discharge them. The Allahabad High Court, in the case quoted yesterday by Mr. Justice Bayley, and commented on by us some time ago, laid down the principle that the absence of a Queen's Proctor in India compelled judges to exercise great caution in granting decrees for divorce. Mr. Justice Bayley has come round to this belief, and has acted on information which was never formally communicated to the Court, and of which, in an ordinary case, he would have remained judicially ignorant. The exercise by a Court of the functions of Queen's Proctor is but a clumsy expedient after all. Some other officer than a judge ought to be charged with them, until a more rational conception of the law of divorce will enable such services to be dispensed with.

A MEETING of the shareholders of the Kaiser-i-Hind Gold-mining Company was held yesterday afternoon, Major Strutt presiding. A long discussion took place upon the question whether the company should be kept going, though no sufficient return had yet been found. Mr. Trimbuck R. Telang proposed that the board be authorized to continue the work so long as funds are available and the company's mining advisers consider there is any chance of finding gold in payable quantities. To this an amendment was proposed by Mr. Macfarlane, seconded by Dr. Blaney:—"(1) That all further work be abandoned and the company be wound up voluntarily. (2) That C. A. Turner, Esqr., be appointed the sole liquidator of the company, and that his remuneration be fixed at a commission of two per cent. on the amount of the assets of the company realized by him. (3) That the liquidator be requested to employ a firm of solicitors who have been unconnected with the promoters of this company; and that all necessary steps be taken by the liquidator to recover from the promoters of the company, or from the vendors, such sum or sums of money as, in the opinion of counsel, may be probably or possibly recovered." The first of these series of amendments was put to the vote and lost. Mr. Telang's proposition in favour of continuing the work for six months more was carried by a majority. Mr. Macfarlane has demanded a poll, which will be taken on Monday, and the result of it will be declared at a meeting to be held a fortnight hence.

DR. BLANEY, City Coroner, held an inquest on Sunday on the body of a labourer who was suffocated in a drain at the Prince's Dock. The man went into a night-soil sewer for the purpose of cleaning it out. This sewer is the one in which two labourers were suffocated last year. The man's death occurred at the mouth of the sewer and on the dock premises. Mr. Ormiston, the Port Trust engineer, warned by what happened in the sewer about a year ago, kept the man-holes open for two days before allowing the men to enter the sewer. He also ventilated the drain by means of wooden ventilators, and flushed it with sea water and hot water from the engine-shed of the hydraulic lift. There was still a depth of four inches of liquid and twelve inches of solid sewage. Other parts of the sewer had been entered with impunity and cleaned out. But at the spot where the death occurred only a small quantity of the solid filth had been scraped up, when the deceased suddenly screamed and became unconscious. He was then only three or four feet inside the covered part of the sewer. He was at once taken out and treated by the doctor of the s.s. Mirzapore, but he died within half an hour. The sewer has a slope of six feet per mile, and road grit is excluded from it. It is an old sewer, and has been frequently flushed. This is another instance of the killing power of night-soil sewage.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR comes to Bombay on Thursday.

ALL frequenters of the Apollo-bunder, whether on business or in order to enjoy the sea-breeze and a Bunder cocktail, will be glad to learn that there is at last a chance of the abominable Apollo Basin nuisance being removed, the Municipal Commissioner having decided to provide the required latrine accommodation on the Wellington Reclamation.

THE Hon'ble T. C. Hope arrived at Kurrachee on Sunday week, and shortly after proceeded to inspect the Native Jetty, Napier Mole, Keamari, the Merewether Pier, &c. The next day Mr. Hope received a few members of the European and native mercantile community in the forenoon, and during the afternoon he saw the members of the Harbour Board.

ANOTHER row between Mussulmans and Hindus is reported. The Delhi Gazette of November 17 says:—We regret to hear that an affray attended with loss of life has taken place at Khundowlee, near Agra, through the collision of Hindoos and Mussulmans on the occasion of the Muharrum. Party feeling, we know, has run high between the two sects in Agra itself, and fears have been entertained lest a similar outbreak should take place in that city, a Hindoo festival happening to fall due at the time the procession of tazias will take place.

A RANGOON correspondent points out that it is curious the Assam tea-planters do not endeavour to open up a trade with Burmah, which has a large tea-drinking and tea-eating population.

THE official summary of the Punjab weather and crop reports for the week ended on the 14th inst. states:—The health of the Province is generally good; the crop prospects are also good, but rain is wanted in the Rohtak district of the Hissar division, and at Peshawur.

THE trial of ten of the chief accused in the Salem Riots cases closed on the 17th inst. before the Additional Session Judge, Mr. Wigram. One of the prisoners is the pleader, Vijiagavachary, who for a long time eluded the police and at length surrendered himself; three others are merchants; and three more village munsiffs. Of the remaining three one is a ryot, another a petition writer, and the last a snuff dealer. The two native assessors, on being asked their opinion upon the case, stated that they did not consider the destruction of the mosque was the result of a conspiracy, and they were not of opinion that any of the accused were concerned in the conspiracy alleged by the prosecution. They found four of the prisoners only guilty of abetment by being present at the mosque instigating and aiding its destruction. The judge reserved his decision.

THE steam tramways in Calcutta are not proving the unmixed blessing they were at first pronounced on all sides. The Englishman now says:—"The steam cars are no longer the gently, noiselessly-gliding engines of old, but puffing, rattling engines which make nearly as much noise as a locomotive, while the pace at which they now sometimes as much as between ten and fifteen miles an hour, far exceeds that laid down by Government in the tramway regulations, or generally used on tramways. Under the circumstances, we think that, if the rules, as laid down, are not strictly adhered to, and the old practice of running the trains reverted to, it will be the duty of the Municipality to refuse further sanction to the use of the steam-engines, as the company have been the first to break the terms of the contract."

TRAFFIC through the Bolan Pass is now completely stopped, the chief Punjab paper says, and all kafilas now take the Harnai route. This is caused chiefly by the taxes raised by the Bolan Sirdars, and even the Quetta shopkeepers get their stores round by Harnai, where the road is free. Harnai was the old kafila route; but was given up owing to the depredations of the Murrees, who are now fairly peaceable, and are held in check by strong posts along their frontier.

THE question of the Kraw Canal scheme continues to be discussed in the Siam, Java, and other papers, and the Batavia journals have advanced the plea that Netherlands India is largely interested in the undertaking if it be carried through, and is entitled to representation in an International Commission said to be contemplated with respect to this proposed canal. The Singapore paper mentions that one important point seems to have been overlooked, viz. that there never has been a proper survey of the West Coast from Burmah to Penang, and that islands and dangers have been dotted down promiscuously on the charts, according to chance reckonings of mariners who may have noticed them in the course of their voyages. The promoters of the canal scheme would appear to have taken the charts as correct, and to have mainly confined their inquiries and researches to the route and the eastern outlet, assuming from the maps or charts the feasibility and utility of the canal, without attention to the islands, shoals, dangers, or currents that may beset vessels before reaching its western entrance. The necessity for a proper survey of the coast between Burmah and Penang has been brought to the notice of the Straits Government in a letter by Captain Scott, of the B. I. S. N. Co.'s service; and in his opening address to the Council on the 26th ultimo, His Excellency the Governor announced that the Straits Colony would be willing to bear its share of the cost, on condition, presumably, that the Indian Government pay a like share.

ON the subject of the relations between France and China with regard to Annam, the Hongkong Daily Press says the inaction of the French authorities is simply incomprehensible. A marked insult has been put upon them by the Chinese Commandant, and yet they take no steps. There seems to be a well-defined intention on the part of China to drive the French out of Tonquin; and "the two nationalities meantime are jealously watching each other; something like two dogs watching a bone which each covets and both intend to seize." The paper adds that by virtue of the Treaty made between France and Annam in 1874 the former country claims "a kind of protectorate" over the latter, and that the Annamese are thereby bound to conform their policy to that of France. It is also expressly laid down, the North China Herald points out, that the Treaty is based on the recognition by the French President of "the sovereignty of Annam, and its entire independence of all foreign Powers whatever."

A REMARKABLE feat in heliography was performed during the late war. Shortly after his arrival in Cairo Major Keyser, superintendent of army signalling, established a heliograph on the top of the pyramid of Cheops, the larger of the pyramids near Cairo. From this point he flashed a message all the way to Alexandria, conveying the congratulations of Sir Garnet Wolseley to the Khedive, then in the latter town.

CETEWAYO is not to be kept out of his kingdom much longer. In the House of Commons, on Oct. 26, Mr. Dillwyn asked whether there was any truth in the statement that Cetewayo would not return to Zululand for at least six months. Mr. E. Ashley replied in the negative. He hoped and believed that no such long time would elapse as was stated in the question before the return of Cetewayo to Zululand. The Colonial Office had been in constant communication with Sir H. Bulwer as to the details of the arrangements. As the House was aware, there were very complicated interest and considerations to be taken into account. The last communication from Sir H. Bulwer was that in a despatch now on the way to England he had forwarded the final details he wished to propose to the Government, and if they were accepted and approved Cetewayo would be able to return in December.

IT is hardly necessary, the Pall Mall Gazette remarks, to say any more as to the effects of the abandonment of Mr. Forster's Irish policy on the pacification of the country. But Mr. Trevelyan's excellent speech the week before the mail left, on the occasion of receiving a local honour which he well deserves, puts a clencher on the matter. Shortly, the number of outrages has fallen from 531 in March last (the highest total recorded during the present year) to 131 during the past month, of which 72, or more than half, were of the less serious nature of threatening letters. And the Chief Secretary takes care to fix the date with significant precision. "Things have looked brighter," he says, "since last May." Lord Spencer's appointment was announced on April 29, and Mr. Forster resigned on May 2. What has made the difference? The Land Act, the Arrears Act, the instant disuse of arbitrary arrest, improved magisterial organization, and the simple device of changing venue and having special juries. "We are not of those who think the Irish sky all sunshine even now, but it would have been far more lowering than it is if the new policy of May last had not been entered upon."

WE give an account in another column of a trip by Sir Garnet Wolseley and his staff to the Pyramids and Sakkarah, under arrangements made by Messrs. Cook and Son, the Tourist Agents. In this connection, the following paragraph from George Augustus Sala's weekly notes in the Illustrated London News (Oct. 28) is amusing and interesting:—

Surely, in the settlement of that Egyptian question which, during the recess, has furnished forth stubble for so many political geese, the claims of Mr. Thomas Cook ought not to be overlooked. There lies before me a neat programme from the printing press of "D. Jablin and Co., of Cairo," detailing the arrangements made for a "special excursion" of Sir Garnet Wolseley and staff to Memphis, the Serapeum, and the pyramids of Sakkarah. "Leave the iron bridge on Nile steamer Masr at six a.m.; breakfast at seven; arrive at Bedreshein at 8-30, and at Sakkarah at 10-30; visit the Tomb of Ti and the Serapeum; halt at Mariette's house; refreshments; visit the pyramid of Ounas; dinner at 4 p.m.; return to steamer at 8-30." The entire proceedings conducted by Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son. I have often cogitated as to the possibility of remodelling the general political machine on strictly financial principles. Messrs. Guilter and Ball, or some other eminent firm of accountants, might manage the finances of Turkey; Messrs. Spiers and Pond might bring gastronomic regeneration to that dimmerless land, Spain; Mr. Pollaky and the "private inquiry" gentlemen might definitely root Nihilism out of Russia; and Mr. Thomas Cook, or his son, would make a capital Joint-Khedive. Whether the affairs of the French Republic should be intrusted to the management of Mr. Augustus Harris, Mr. William Holland, or Mr. James Willing, I have not yet quite made up my mind.

Using violence to his superior officer, being in the execution of his office; in that, at Solon, on or about 1st October, while a prisoner undergoing sentence by court martial, he threw an earthenware basin at, and struck therewith on the head, Corporal James. Major Thomas, on being relieved, assumes charge of the executive office at Lucknow.

THE LATE LORD HARROWBY.

THE Right Hon'ble Dudley Ryder, K. G., Earl of Harrowby, whose death is announced by Reuter, was the eldest son of the late Earl. He was born May 19, 1798, was educated at Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated B. A. in 1820, and afterwards M. A. and D. C. L. In 1819 he was returned to the House of Commons as one of the members for Tiverton, which he represented till 1830, and sat for Liverpool from 1831 until 1847. He was Secretary to the India Board during the earlier part of Earl Grey's administration, was appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster under Lord Palmerston's first administration in 1855, and exchanged that post for the office of Lord Privy Seal, which he resigned in December, 1857. Lord Harrowby, who obtained the blue riband of the Garter in 1859, was well known as a philanthropist and a supporter of religious societies and charitable institutions. Lord Harrowby is succeeded in his title by his son, Lord Sandon, a member of Lord Beaconsfield's Cabinet, and his death will, therefore, cause a vacancy in the representation of Liverpool.

The depression near Ceylon has almost disappeared, and a large area of high pressure now exists over Northern India and Bengal, with relatively low pressures off the Coromandel coast and the west coast of India. The wind on the whole is easterly, but it is northerly in Bengal, Orissa, and Madras, and in Mysore north-westerly. The weather is very fair, except in the south. Rain to-day:—Secunderabad, 1½ inch; Madras, Coimbatore, Mercara, and Bangalore, ½ inch. Previously, Nellore had ½ inch.

Nov. 19.—The barometer has risen rather briskly in Beluchistan and the northern part of the Punjab, but has fallen slightly elsewhere. The pressure is highest over Northern India, and lowest over Ceylon, but everywhere it is above the average for November. The wind is north-easterly over Burmah and the greater part of the Bay of Bengal, north-westerly in Madras, and easterly over the inland and western parts of the Peninsula. The weather is fine except in Madras, where the sky is cloudy and slight showers have fallen. No rainfall of importance is reported to-day. Previously, Nellore had 1½ inch.

THE KAISER-I-HIND GOLD-MINING COMPANY.

A MEETING of the shareholders of this company was held yesterday afternoon, Major Strutt occupying the chair.

The Chairman said the object in calling the meeting was to consider whether they should wind up the company, or continue the work. Their mining captain, Mr. De Tonquin, was present at the meeting, and he would give information on any question which the shareholders might choose to ask. They had taken the votes of the shareholders on the question whether or not the company should continue the work, and the result was that there were 876 votes for going on with the work and 59 against it. Mr. De Tonquin informed them that he was of opinion that they should go on and sink two of the shafts on the No. 1 section another fifty or sixty, or eighty feet. It appeared that one of the shafts dipped at an angle of 45 degrees, and another at an angle of seventy five: and he proposed to continue the sinking until the two lodes met.

Mr. Macfarlane.—Perhaps Mr. Tonquin will state his reason why he thinks we should go on?

Mr. Tonquin was understood to say that the shafts might be sunk deeper with some chance of working them profitably.

Mr. Forde.—Have you found gold?

Mr. Tonquin replied that he had made some washings, and found traces of gold, but not yet in sufficient quantities.

Mr. Forde said there was no mention of any gold being found on the estate in Mr. Tonquin's last report, in which they were strongly advised to push on the work, although no gold was found. Mr. Tonquin must give some reasons for that.

Mr. Tonquin.—Well, I have given you the reason just now.

Mr. Forde.—There is nothing beyond mere hopes that more gold will be found.

Mr. Tonquin said that gold was discernible in several places, but it had not hitherto been in such quantities as to make digging for it a paying concern.

Mr. Macfarlane.—Will you kindly speak a little louder, Mr. Tonquin, so that the gentlemen at this end of the table may hear you?

Mr. Tonquin hereupon repeated what is given above.

Mr. Macfarlane then asked whether he had in any other place found any valuable quartz, so as to make it worth while to go on.

Mr. Tonquin gave an instance of a company which, he said, was strongly advised by a competent person to push on the work.

Mr. Macfarlane.—That is just the thing we don't want. We are not in need of anybody's opinion; we want to know some facts,

Mr. Tonquin.—I say the man I speak of has found gold enough to encourage him.

Mr. Macfarlane.—But in what quantity? Some people are likely to be encouraged by quantities which may be deemed by others to be very small.

Mr. Forde said he thought the Pappa was about twelve or fourteen penny-weights per ton, and it was taken out from a depth of from eighty-two to ninety-five feet.

Mr. Forde said in his report Mr. Tonquin had given no reason why he thought it necessary to test the place at greater depths.

Mr. Tonquin said the reason was that certain spots gave some promise of yielding sufficient gold if the shafts were sunk deeper. Looking at the nature of the quartz there, he was of opinion that a fair trial had not yet been given.

Mr. Forde.—Do you know the difference of level between your shafts and other shafts where they may have discovered gold?

Mr. Tonquin.—I don't know.

Mr. Forde.—But do you know that yours is at a great deal higher level?

Mr. Tonquin.—It is so.

Mr. Forde.—And, perhaps, you do not expect to find gold at a depth of ninety-nine feet? In Indian gold-mines generally they do not find any rich quartz until they get below the lowest water mark. Is that your experience?

Mr. Tonquin replied that he could not give a definite opinion on the point.

Mr. Forde said that as water went away it carried off with it particles of gold; therefore until they got below the water level they need not expect any rich vein of gold. Mr. Forde asked if Mr. Tonquin had not just got the water level.

Mr. Tonquin replied in the affirmative. If they continued to sink the shafts deeper, they would get below the water level.

Mr. Forde remarked that if they were going to work scientifically they should not have stopped at fifty or a hundred feet.

Mr. Macfarlane said that when he was in the Colar district he went down the hills to a depth of at least 130 feet. Was not that very much below their level?

Mr. Tonquin.—Yes; about fifty feet.

Mr. Forde observed that if it were found that natives had gone down very low to get gold, it must surely have paid them to do so.

Mr. Macfarlane said that old native mines were supposed to have been worked by people who got nothing for their labour, who, in fact, were mere slaves getting nothing more than a bare sustenance. There were very few native works on the Kaiser.

Mr. Forde asked if a regular register had been kept of the workings from day to day.

Mr. Tonquin said a register had been kept.

Mr. C. H. B. Forbes.—There is a column in the weekly reports showing if there were any washings made during the week.

Mr. Forde.—You should register your failures as well as your successes.

After some further discussion, it was proposed by Mr. Trimbuck R. Telang "that the board be, and is hereby, authorized to continue the work so long as the company's mining advisers consider there is any chance of finding gold in payable quantities."

The proposition was seconded by Mr. E. G. Cabral.

Mr. Hormusjee Suntoke.—How long has the company been working?

The Chairman.—It has been working now about fifteen months.

Mr. Suntoke.—How many trial shafts have been sunk altogether?

Mr. Tonquin.—About seventeen or eighteen.

The Chairman.—That is really good work. You will see from this plan that a great deal of excavation has been made.

The Chairman, in reply to a shareholder, said they were going to continue the work for six months more.

A Parsee shareholder.—What sum do you propose to spend?

The Chairman.—About Rs. 20,000 more.

The shareholder thought they had better wind up the company voluntarily, rather than incur further risk.

The Chairman.—It is quite possible we may find sufficient gold hereafter.

Mr. Tonquin.—I would conscientiously advise you to carry on the work.

The Chairman said Mr. Tonquin had no personal interest in their continuing the work. He had an appointment in Mysore, to which he might return at any time.

Mr. Macfarlane.—I have not the slightest doubt that Mr. Tonquin has done as well as any other man in his place could have done. But I think that Mr. Tonquin's hopes carry him beyond what a reasonable person ought to anticipate.

Mr. Tonquin.—What I have said is entirely in the interests of the shareholders. Directly I leave your service, I can go to Mysore and get full pay.

Mr. Macfarlane here proposed a series of amendments, which are as follows:—(1) That all further work be abandoned and the company be wound up voluntarily. (2) That C. A. Turner, Esqr., be appointed the sole liquidator of the company, and that his remuneration be fixed at a commission of two per cent. on the amount of the assets of the company realized by him. (3) That the liquidator be requested to employ a firm of solicitors who have been unconnected with the promoters of this company, and that all the necessary steps be taken by the liquidator to recover from the promoters of the company, or from the vendors, such sum or sums of money as, in the opinion of counsel, may be probably or possibly recovered.

Mr. Tonquin said that if they employed counsel, and were recommended to go to law, they would spend all the money they had got.

Mr. Macfarlane said it would be much better to do that than go on looking for gold they would never find. He was positive they would never find a single ounce of gold. They might get no gold at all; and the cost of consulting counsel would be less than the cost of any gold they might find.

The first of Mr. Macfarlane's amendments, relating to the voluntary winding up of the company, was then put to the vote, and lost by 10 to 4.

The Chairman.—Now, I need not put your second amendment, Mr. Macfarlane. It is only contingent upon, and a part of, the first resolution.

Mr. Macfarlane.—Though my other amendments will, no doubt, meet a similar fate, I should just like them to be put.

After some further discussion, at the suggestion of Mr. Suntoke the words "so long as funds are available" were inserted in the body of Mr. Telang's proposition. Mr. Telang's resolution was then put, and carried by 10 to 5.

Mr. Macfarlane then demanded a poll with reference to all the three amendments he had proposed. It was ultimately resolved to hold a poll from 11 a. m. till 5 p. m. next Monday, and to adjourn the meeting for a fortnight.

DEATH IN A SEWER.

A CORONER'S INQUEST was held yesterday at the Prince's Dock, on the body of Luximon Soobhana. Deceased was a labourer employed in the Engineer's Department of the Bombay Port Trust. He died from the effects of suffocation by inhaling mephitic gas in a sewer which he was cleaning out. The verdict was that the death of the deceased was caused by suffocation by inhaling mephitic gas in a sewer, and that the death was accidental. The jury were of opinion that additional precautions should be adopted when sewers are being cleaned out. The night-soil sewer in which the unfortunate man was suffocated is the sewer in which two labourers were suffocated last year; but this death occurred at the entrance to the drain and on the dock premises. Mr. Ormiston had taken the precaution to keep the man-holes open for two days before he permitted the men to enter it, but the mephitic gas was deadly even then. The man got his death only three or four feet inside the covered part of the drain, and that although he was at once taken out and treated by the doctor of the s. s. Mirzapore.

FIFTH CRIMINAL SESSIONS.—Nov. 20.

(Before the Hon'ble Mr. Justice WEST.

Hall's cargo discharged in the stream should be borne by the Trust.

DOCK DUES.

Read letter from the Dock Superintendent, No. 4437, dated 4th November, stating that vessels laden with Mauritius sugar invariably discharge in the stream, in preference to the Dock, because the charges at the latter are higher than the muccadums' charge for landing and delivery in the stream. He states that the s. s. Sherborne, about to arrive, will discharge in Dock, provided the charge be reduced from 12 annas per ton to ½ anna per bag of 1¼ cwt., and he asks sanction to this rate being charged. Read letter from Dock Superintendent, No. 4440, dated 4th November, further recommending that the Dock charge on sugar be reduced. Read letter from the Dock Superintendent, dated 7th November, intimating that the Sherborne has entered the Dock, and strongly recommending that the rate be reduced. Read minutes of members of Dock Committee.

Resolution.—The import landing charge on sugar and sugar-candy should be reduced from 12 annas to 6 annas per ton, and those vessels which have landed sugar in the Dock during the current month should have the benefit of the charge.

LIGHT-HOUSES.

Read Government Resolution No. 490, dated 13th October, on the matters referred to in the report of the Committee appointed by the Government of India to inquire into the system of light-house administration in India. The Government of Bombay agree with the Trustees in thinking it undesirable to remove European supervision from the important lights at Kennery and the Prongs. They ask the opinion of the Trustees on a suggestion made by the Commissioner of Customs that the light at Karwar, which is a first class dioptric, should be removed and placed on the Burnt Islands (Vingoria Rock) light-house off Vingoria; the Burnt Islands light to be fixed in the Oyster Rock Light-house, Carwar. Government also intimate that they consider the inspection of the light-houses between Dwarka on the north and Carwar on the south by the Port Officer of Bombay, or his Deputy, to be unnecessary.

Resolution.—Government should be informed that the Trustees regret that they are not in possession of such information with regard to the ports of Carwar and Vingorla as would enable them to give any useful opinion on the subject.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Read letters from the Port Officer, dated 26th and 31st October, reporting that the s. s. Geelong collided with the centre pier when going out of dock. He attributes the blame to the pier headmen for not quickly enough heaving tight one of the hawsers. Read memo. from the Resident Engineer, dated 30th October, estimating the damage at Rs. 60. Read minutes of members of Harbour and Pilotage Committee. Read also report by Port Officer, dated 27th October, that the s. s. Dundee, Monarch while crossing the Dock on 23th idem fouled and damaged the s. s. Pekin's boat, which was swung outside. Read minutes of members of Harbour and Pilotage Committee.

Resolution.—To be recorded.

Read letter from the Health Officer, Municipality, dated 25th October, calling on the Trustees to fill in the quarry holes on the north side of Wareebunder-road. He states that the holes are made use of by dhobies, and that he has received a complaint about the nuisance arising from the foul state of the water therein. Read report by Resident Engineer, dated 6th November, stating that the greater portion of the quarry holes referred to are on ground belonging to Government. He states that the cost of filling up and levelling the Trustees' ground will be Rs. 100.

Resolution.—The expenditure of Rs. 100 for filling up and levelling the ground in question is sanctioned.

The following were amongst the papers laid on the table :—

Letter from the Port Officer, dated 7th November, reporting that the wreck removed from the entrance to the Dock channel has been sold and has realized Rs. 1,096-2.

Statement showing the amount collected on behalf of the Municipality at Mahim and Sion causeways on account of toll on carts, from 2nd October to 5th November, 1882, viz, Rs. 1,775.

THE SALEM RIOTS TRIALS.

THE trial of the following prisoners was concluded on the 17th inst., before Mr. H. Wigram, Additional Sessions Judge, Salem :—1, Ponnusawmy Chetty, Merchant, Shivapett; 2, Vijiaragavacharry, Pleader, Salem; 3, Vijiarangum Chetty, Merchant, Salem; 4, Navunsamy Chetty, Merchant, Salem; 5, Kandapa Mudally, Village Munsif, Alagapuram; 6, Yersappa Gounden, Village Munsiff, Coomarasamipett; 7, Kanda Gounden, Ryot, Peramanir; 8, Muthucumarasamy Moodelly, Village Munsiff Peramanir; 9, Yellappa Naick, Snuff-dealer, Salem; 10, Veerasamy Pillay, petition-writer, Coomasamipett.

After the arguments, the Judge asked the Assessors their opinion on the case, and they stated as follows :—

1st Assessor.—The destruction of the mosque was not the result of a conspiracy, nor do I believe that the prisoners or any of them were concerned in the conspiracy alleged by the prosecution. I find the prisoners Nos. 7 and 10 guilty of abetment by being present at the mosque.

2nd Assessor.—I don't believe the destruction of the mosque was the result of a conspiracy. If there were meetings, they could not have been with a criminal intention or object; for if the destruction of the mosque and other crimes were discussed, the meetings would have been known to the authorities, the police, and to Brahmins and Mahommedans. These must have heard of the conspiracy. I believe none of the prisoners were concerned in a conspiracy, but that prisnors 5, 6 and 10 were present at the mosque, instigating and aiding its destruction.

The Assessors believed the other prisoners except 5, 6, 7 and 10 to be not guilty, and acquitted them.

The Judge reserved judgment until Monday.

Mr. Grant asked that if any of the prisoners were convicted and sentenced to terms of imprisonment, that they might be directed to suffer simple imprisonment only during the early part of their sentence, so that the time necessary in appealing to the High Court, and obtaining that Court's suspension of sentence, if it should be pleased to grant it, might not be spent by the prisoners as a period of rigorous imprisonment. Mr. Grant called the Court's attention to section 60, Indian Penal Code, which provides that imprisonment might in all cases be partly rigorous and partly simple.

The Judge promised to consider the application if he should convict any of the prisoners, and when determining the sentences to be passed on them.—Madras Mail.

N.-W. PROVINCES, PUNJAB, AND OUDH.

SIR LEPEL GRIFFIN AT LAHORE.—Sir Lepel Griffin, K.C.S.I., Agent to the Governor-General, Central India, is now staying in Lahore; having come, more especially, to be present at the inaugural convocation of the Punjab University; amongst the pious founders of which Sir Lepel should rightly be numbered, for it was he who, as Secretary, drew up the programme of principles which have been fought for all along. After the convocation, Sir Lepel goes to Rupar to be present at the opening of the Sirhind Canal; another scheme, for the benefit of the Punjab, with which he has been closely connected. In 1870, Sir Lepel was deputed to Pattiala, Nabha, and Jhind, to negotiate with the Chiefs with regard to their contributions, and for the management of the Canal; and the arrangements then made have stood till now. After the ceremony at Rupar, Sir Lepel Griffin joins his camp at Gwalior, on the 25th November; starting, on the 28th, for a prolonged tour in the Bundelkund States, Rewah, and Bhopal.—Civil and Military Gazette.
